

CDP Global Forests Report 2013 was released

CDP’s forests program acts on behalf of investors to collect information from companies on the operational, reputational and regulatory risks and opportunities, and the value creation and erosion, resulting from their exposure to deforestation, which accounts for 10-15% of global CO2 emissions. The report provides insight into how companies are addressing their exposure to from the agricultural commodities responsible for most deforestation globally.